HE FOUND THE WAY

From Despondent Illness to Robust Good Health in a Few Short Weeks

"When your stomach is out of order you are sick all over." That is a true saying, but many who are ill do not know where the trouble is. I was that way, said Mr. William Reinheimer, 113 Northampton Avenue, Bethlehem, Pa.

I seemed to be full of pains and terribly nervous—pains in my side and back and up under the ribs. My stomach felt sore and I was belching gas and had heartburn after every meal. Some said I was nervous indigestion, but it did not stop although I tried many medicines. The trouble was I was going at it the wrong way—treating the effect instead of the cause.

When I began to use Munyon's Paw-Paw Tonic I got relief right away. It relieved the indigestion by helping the food digest. (The dried juice of the Paw-Paw fruit, from which the medicine gets its name, is one of the most effective aids to digestion that nature provides and is known to every doctor and druggist). Its mild but effective cleansing of the system, improved the blood and restored my nerves so that I was able to sleep and get the rest I needed.

I soon found that I was able to eat heartily of anything I wanted, without fear of distress. I have gained a few pounds and more energy and strength than for a long time; also I have gotten rid of a bad taste in the mouth that I used to have.

From my experience I can gladly recommend Munyon's Paw-Paw Tonic as an Ideal Tonic Laxative, Digestant and Blood Medicine.

To be strong morally, one must be physically strong.

Use More Fertilizer

The tendency of the present time is toward the use of larger quantities of fertilizer per acre, says The Southern Planter. "The practice is sound," it adds. "If the yields of your crops are not what they should be, plan to use MORE fertilizer of the right kind and in the right way."

"Since 1918 the plant food contents of fertilizers has been increased until today the average fertilizer contains 17 units of plant food."—National Fertilizer Assn.

Must Be Fully Ripe

Flue-cure tobacco should be thoroughly ripe when gathered, says the U. S. Department of Agriculture. "The leaf surface should show numerous patches of a light-yellow color, and even the green portions should be of a light tint. Otherwise it will be difficult or impossible to cure the leaf properly."

V-C

THE TOBACCO PLANT is so sensitive to soil conditions and plant foods in the soil that it is being used by the Connecticut Agricultural Experiment Station as an indicator plant in soil studies.

Feed Those Flowers!

While you're making the farm pretty with money crops, give the Wife a chance to beautify the house yard too. Treat her garden to some of V-C BLOOM AID—which bears about the same relation to ordinary commercial fertilizer that cake does to cornbread. Feed her roses BLOOM AID —give the cape jasmine BLOOM AID—nourish the old evergreens with BLOOM AID—and let the Missus be proud of the nicest yard in the county. Incidentally a little V-C BLOOM AID would help in the garden patch too. It is practically odorless, and comes in bags, cans, bottles,—and for potted plants, in tablet form.

Old Friends . . and New

Southern farmers who are still in their prime can remember helping their fathers haul V-C Fertilizers to the springtime fields of long ago. Now their sons are helping them—and V-C remains a family institution. Could V-C be otherwise than reliable, with such traditions behind it? Other regions too are following the choice of the Old South as they in their turn discover that fertilizing pays. V-C's good name keeps on opening the way to new friends—whom the years will ripen into old ones.

ONE DAY'S OPERATION of a big cigarette factory takes the product of 148 acres, says a government report,—and $90,000 worth of revenue stamps. Three freight cars are needed to haul the day's output away.

V-C

Cigarette production in the United States is more than six times greater than it was when the World War started in 1918, and twice as great as at the close of the war.

V-C

"HAVE A SMOKE," says one man to another at the tobacco counter. And his invitation is a lineal descendant of the ceremony the Indians used long before the white man ever came, when they passed the pipe around.

V-C

MINING IS THE OLD st of all industries. It started in the Stone Age, when hunting and killing were fashionable. Men had to dig for the rocks they wanted to tie on their clubs, and that was mining. But agriculture came next. It was farming that changed wandering hunters and herdsmen into settled, productive, dependable people.

Wars Shift Tobacco

The same wars that unsettled so many other things have shifted the culture of tobacco three times. First, with exports from the United States choked off by embargoes during and after the Revolution, European nations began growing the plant for their own use. Sixty years later the Civil War caused Virginia to lose its tobacco leadership to Kentucky. Sixty years after that the World War initiated millions into the delights of the cigarette and shifted leadership from Kentucky to North Carolina with the increased demand for bright leaf.

V-C

Burley tobacco growers gather their tobacco by cutting the whole stalk. Most bright tobacco growers gather just the leaves. Each way has its good reasons.

RESEARCH PAYS!

Agricultural research in the United States is costing about twenty million dollars a year—and returning more EVERY year than ALL of it has cost in the past sixty years, whether done by the government or by the states. So said Dr. A. F. Woods, of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, in a speech last November. Corporations spend ten times that much; says another estimate; and their returns is said to be between 500 and 1,000 per cent a year on the investment.

V-C

John Rolfe, the sheik that dazzled Pocahontas, was the first of all whites men to plant a tobacco patch. In 1612 he had one at Jamestown, Va.

V-C

Two men were taking inventory of an estate, says Mixed Goods. They listed everything in the house, then went to the barn. One of the items there read "Two jugs, half full." They later drew a line through the "half full" and went on with the listing. The writing was worse from there on. The final item was "One revolving door mat."

THURSDAY, APRIL 4, 1929

The farm population of the United States is now the smallest in twenty years, according to the U. S. Department of Agriculture. It is estimated that on January 1, 1929, there were 27,411,000 persons on farms, as compared with 32,000,000 in 1909.

Egg-yolks are among the best iron-rich foods. They also contain phosphorus and calcium, elements needed to build bone, teeth and other tissues. Vitamins are present, and some fat. Food containing egg-yolks are therefore always valuable.

To avoid losses of chicks from capes, keep them away from chickens; the turkeys may show no signs of the disease, but they can pass it on to chicks with fatal results to the latter. Gapes are caused by a parasitic worm that gets into the chick's windpipe, and the male and female worms have the curious habit of attaching themselves so firmly to each other that at first sight they look like a single worm with two heads and two necks. It is pretty difficult to extract the worms, and it is better to put your faith in prevention. Put the chicks, as soon as hatched, on clean ground, and keep them away from turkeys or ground occupied by turkeys. Adult chickens seem to be immune from gapes.

On New Pasture

Dairy cows should not be turned on early spring pasture until the grass is 3 to 4 inches high and then only for a few hours a day at first. Continue to feed hay and silage for a time after starting them on pasture. A gradual change of this kind will lessen the danger of bloat and will minimize the grassy taste in the milk. If cows that are producing moderately are in thin condition at the end of the winter, they may increase in weight on pasture alone. It is generally good practice, however, to continue feeding grain to cows on pasture because the milk production will be higher and will be maintained longer.

Virginian Honored

Washington, March—Dr. R. P. Cooke, now health officer for Rockbridge county, Va., has just received a Congressional gold medal for distinguished service. This is a delayed recognition of an act of outstanding heroism.

When Dr. Walter Reed was starting his investigation of the causes of yellow fever and its methods of transmission, he was compelled to use volunteers to disprove or to prove certain factors. At that time the great majority of people thought that the disease was carried by contact. If that theory could be disproved much time would be saved.

Dr. Cooke was one of the small groupe who offered to sleep in the uncleaned hut of a man who had died of yellow fever. The outcome of this heroic experiment and the subsequent study of the mosquito as a carrier gave to Dr. Reed the information upon which is based the campaign which is ridding the world of yellow fever. These experiments were conducted in Cuba in 1900.

Clean Up

"In the spring a young man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of love". Thus mused an official of the State health department; and he added: "It would pay young men and old men probably much more if they would let their minds turn to flies just now".

He went on to say that spring is not only an agreeable time for man but it is also the beginning of the fly season and the start of the period when filth-borne diseases, such as typhoid fever, are prevalent. He was not a bit elated over the big fall in the typhoid death rate because, as he explained, it is really a community disgrace to have a case of typhoid fever.

"If", said this health worker, "the peopleof Virginia who do not have the advantages of city water and sewer systems would be as much interested in protecting themselves as the cities are in giving public protection, the air could be full of flies and the result would be nothing more than discomfort and possibly profanity. If flies cannot get to filth, they cannot carry filth germs—that is so obvious that no one can dispute it; but so long as flies can get to filth they will carry the germs of intestinal disease and the eggs of the intestinal worms."

"It is all very well", said this official, "for people to have clean-up weeks during which they make the front yards and the streets look nicer; but, as a health matter, it is the back yard and the unseen portions of the premises that really count.

The Two Candidates

Mr. Editor—Now that the triangle has been taken out of the approaching primary election, the Democratic party has two distinguished Virginians to choose between—they both have sought the governorship in the past and both have been opposed by what is termed the Organization. One has rendered distinguished service in the Virginia Senate—the other has served his State with ability as Attorney General. Mr. Pollard supported Mr. Mapp four years ago and now they meet in the political arena of Virginia politics, as adversaries. Whom will the Organization support?

Community Survey

On Sunday afternoon, April 14th, between the hours of 2:30 and 6 o'clock, the churches of this community will unite in making a thorough religious survey. Twenty-one teams of two and three each, as far as possible a Methodist, a Baptist and a Presbyterian, will call at every home within a radius of approximately five miles, ask a few simple questions and extend a cordial invitation to all to attend the various services of our churches, Sunday Schools and young peoples societies.

The information sought is indespensible to the intelligent planing of our church work and everyone must admit that the churches are essential to the moral and religious welfare of our community. We cannot do without them. Everyone is therefore respectfully requested to co-operate in this movement. You will render a great service, if you will remain at home or have some one remain and be ready to give the information desired. Kindly receive these willing workers, give them the information cheerfully and send them on their way rejoicing.

The Crown of England

is worn by the King but a few minutes during the coronation ceremony. With its golden form nearly hidden by diamonds, rubies and sapphires, this crown weighs 5 pounds. Quite a burden for any head. .

But many a widow has had a heavier burden thrust upon her—the managing of an entire estate. A burden she can not lay aside after a few minutes because of its weight.

Protect your wife from such future responsibility by appointing our trust department to manage your estate.

Incomparable Quality

Incomparable quality! A strong statement but also a positive fact. Here is the Tire built to give the Farmer the same satisfactory service as the City user. A TIRE so well built that no additional expense could improve it or add a single mile to its performance.

Right today there's probably a tire on your car or truck that's ready to quit the road. Why not replace it with a VIRGINIA MADE PRODUCT. Virginia products are as good as can be bought. Once a Bedford user; always a BEDFORD BOOSTER.
